

Bond No. 9 Takes to the Streets with Latest Andy Warhol Release

Lexington Avenue, the third in Bond No. 9's series of Warhol eaux de parfum ($195, 100ml; $135, 50ml), celebrates what would be the legendary pop artist's 80th birthday and at the same time pays tribute to his start 50 years ago as a shoe illustrator living and working on Lexington Avenue in Manhattan. Thus, the now familiar shaped flacon wears a colorful Warhol-designed collage of extraordinary heels and high-button boots originally created for I. Magnin. For the holiday season, limited-edition flacons will feature Robert Lee Morris sterling silver shoe pendants of Warhol's designs on a sterling silver chain ($575).

More info: www.bondno9.com

Frais Brings Luxury to Hand Sanitizers

Hand sanitizers have gone luxe with a new line from Australia-based Frais. The eco-friendly moisturizing formula of 66% pure sugarcane alcohol kills 99.9% of germs on contact and is blended with eight essential oils for a lovely aroma. Frais products are free from parabens, propylene glycol and phthalates, as well as artificial colors and fragrances. The elegant-shaped bottles are available from pocket size ($3.50) to 15fl.oz ($29). Packaging is made of recyclable LDPE, HDPE and polypropylene plastic and recyclable paper. The caps/pumps are PP and the paper boxes are recyclable.

More info: www.fraislux.com

50th Anniversary Fragrance

50th Anniversary fragrance line featuring pure plant and launched Ancient Attar Pure-fume Spirit (1.7 fl.oz). Inspired by the ancient art of perfume, the fragrance was created with 100% botanical ingredients, rose and sandalwood, said to last all day. The essential oils sustainably sourced from farmers and indigenous peoples across India. The bottle for the aroma is made of recycled glass with 55% post-consumer recycled ink. The bottle for the aroma is made of recycled glass with 55% post-consumer recycled ink.

